

Difference which exists between living in the Will of God and doing the Will of God.

I was worried about what has been written on the living in the Divine Volition.
And I was praying Jesus to give me more light in order to explain myself better,
- so that I might be able to clarify more this blessed living in the Divine Will to those to whom I am obliged to do so.

And my sweet Jesus told me:

“My daughter, they do not want to understand.

To live in my Will is to reign.

To do my Will is to be submitted to my orders.

The first state is to possess.

The second is to receive my orders and execute them.

To live in my Will is to make my Will one's own, as one's own thing, it is to dispose of It.

To do my Will is to hold It as Will of God,

- not as one's own thing,

- nor can one dispose of It as one wants.

To live in my Will is to live with one single Will – that of God.

And since It is a Will all holy, all pure, all peace, and it is one single Will that reigns,
there are no contrasts - everything is peace.

Human passions tremble before this Supreme Will, and would want to shun It

Nor do they dare to even move, or oppose It,

- seeing that Heaven and earth tremble before this Holy Will.

So, the first step of living in the Divine Will – what does it do?

It lays the divine order in the depth of the soul, emptying her of what is human – of tendencies, of passions, of inclinations and the like.

On the other hand, to do my Will is to live with two wills

And when I give orders to do Mine, one feels the weight of one's own will, which causes contrasts. And even if one follows the orders of my Will with faithfulness,

- one feels the weight of one's rebellious nature, of one's passions and inclinations.

How many Saints, though they may have reached the highest perfection, feel their own will waging war against them, keeping them oppressed

And many are forced to cry out: 'Who will free me from this body of death?' – that is, from this will of mine, which wants to give death to the good I want to do?

To live in my Will is to live as a son.

To do my Will is to live as a servant.
